WHY

GERMANY

Germany is facing a huge shortage of qualified doctors for quite a number of years now. There is a need throughout Germany for several thousand additional doctors. This demand will continue to rise in the coming years. Germany faces a massive lack of medical care personnel, which means many hospitals are overburdened. Currently, roughly 1 million people work in the country's healthcare industry and are paid most handsomely for their services.

- Germany is known to have a world-class healthcare system which means that you will have the opportunity of training in modern infrastructure with advanced equipment.
- There are no tuition fees for most courses in Germany, which means the cost of education is next to zero.
- The PG courses in Germany include on-the-job training making it as good as a job with a well paid monthly stipend.
- The PG Medical student / intern is eligible to get a monthly stipend of around 2700 euros.
- After the completion of your training, you will be awarded the title of a "Facharzt" (specialist or a consultant), your chances of getting Permanent German Residency are also increased.

PG MEDICAL /MEDICAL RESIDENCY IN GERMANY

Germany requires about 20,000 Medical doctors every year in Urban and Rural Health Sectors. Due to the scarcity of Medical Doctors, the German Health Sectors require foreign Non-EU Doctors to work in Urban and Rural Health Sectors. There are few requirements which the doctors should fulfill to work in Germany with highest salary package:-

- Proficiency in the German Language at least C1-C2 Level.
- Special Training for Health Profession
- Appearing and Passing the FSP (Fachsprachprüfung) exam to get the Temporary License.
- Observership / Internship in Germany.
- Appearing and Passing the Approbation Exam to get the Permanent License

German PG Process for MBBS Doctors

Step1.1: German Language Training (A1, A2, B1) (7-8 Months)

Learning German Language is the most important step for medical residency in Germany for non-EU citizens. Doctors will start 8 months German language classes in online mode from Level A1 to Level B1 in India.

Note:

- In India, doctors have to appear for the A2 level exam at Goethe Institute (Company will pay the exam fees).
- This certificate is required by the embassy for visa application.

Step1.2: Degree Evaluation/"Defizitbescheid"

A doctor has to give all the documents (Attested/Notarized) as asked for so that the company can submit them to respective offices in Germany through its German team of translators (will translate all your document in the German language) and lawyers. As it's a long, complicated, and expensive procedure it may take up to 5 months for us to get the "Defizitbescheid". A doctor has to focus on language classes during this time.

Step2: Receive "Defizitbescheid" & Apply for Visa

Doctor has to submit all the documents required for the Visa application. Company will assist the doctor in completing the visa file and apply in the German Embassy.

Step 3: German Language Training B2&C1 (Special Course for Doctors) 4 Months

A doctor will continue learning advanced German language levels i. e. from B2 - C1 in Germany for the next 3-4 months.

Step 4: German Language Exam -FSP (Fachsprachprüfung) for Doctors and JR ship FSP(Fachsprachprüfung)

It is a temporary medical license. For getting a temporary medical permit, you need to give the Medical Language-communication exam and Medical Terminology exam. Basically, it is known as “Fachsprachprüfung”.

There are Three Steps in FSP

1. Patient Case History :

It is the 1st stage of the FSP test and will be of 20 minutes duration. Doctor will have to understand the history of the patient, patient's illness and the recovery status and based on the history, doctor will suggest further treatment. So Doctor will have to make a proper report based on the patient's history

2. Documentation :

Doctor will have to write down the history of the Patient using his knowledge of medical terminology in German Language.

3.Doctor to Doctor Conversation :

Doctor to Doctor conversation is the third step in Fachsprachprüfung. Its again a 20 minutes test involving conversation between Doctor to Doctor. Total FSP exam duration is of 'one hour' and the result will be declared on the same day. Doctors will have to pay Rs. 25000/- exam fee for appearing in this exam themselves. Company will take the appointment of the exam and help in exam preparation through its native German teacher.

FSP Pass: If Doctor clears the test, 2-year temporary Medical license is awarded. It allows doctors to work and get around 4500 Euros per month and OT / Night shifts are paid extra. You can also start clinical practice in the hospital as an assistant Doctor/Dentist.

FSP Fail: If Doctor is not able to clear the test in the first attempt, more attempts can be given every 3 months. So there are unlimited attempts for FSP test. This almost ensures 100% chance of successful medical residency in Germany.

Step 5: Approbation Exam / Knowledge Exam and PG/ kennitsprüfung / Permanent Medical license :

Within 2 years, doctors have to learn as much as they can from their German colleagues and professors and give the medical knowledge exam to recognize their Indian (foreign) medical degree. Doctors will have 3 chances to pass the knowledge exam in their state and have to score 50% marks. If a doctor can not pass this exam in 3 chances, he/she can try to change the state and get 2 years temporary license in another state and give the knowledge exam.

Note: Changing of the state is not always accepted and allowed and it depends on the examining body of that state.

Once a doctor passes the knowledge exam, he/she becomes a permanent/licensed doctor in whole of Germany and becomes eligible to start his PG. As there is no entrance exam in Germany for PG, company will assist in finding PG positions, apply (according to doctors preferred specialization) and help in the whole process through local hospitals and Universities. It can be possible to recognize the JRship years in PG period also. Total duration of PG is 5 years and all the super specializations like Cardiology, Urology, Cardiac surgery, etc. are available.
